Francois Auguste Biard (1799-1882)

«Læstadius preker for samene» (Le Pasteur Læstadius instruisant les Lapons) - 1840

Kjøpt til Nordnorsk Kunstmuseum, Tromsø i 2002

A woman wearing a heavy, light-colored fur parka and a purple headband stands by a fence. The fence is covered with numerous colorful prayer ribbons. She is holding a pair of binoculars and a small bag. The background shows a vast, open landscape with a body of water and distant hills under a clear blue sky.

The core of Kristin

Kristin Pedersen hangs upside down from the ceiling of her living room and explains how breathing affects the body's stress levels. The key to yoga is finding what is you by turning the focus inwards until you are left with all

The mini excavation quartet

The ceremonial first shoveling of the hospital site was performed by children from the Skytterhusfjellet kindergarten in May 2014. We joined Sofia, Savva, Camilla and Patrikas when they returned to Andrevann to continue the work they started this spring.

Rune and the Barents cabaret

Rune Rafaelsen talks passionately and with a dizzying pace. Riitta's intermediate Swedish skills are of no use today – this kind of language isn't taught in school. We are sitting around a big wooden table amongst moving boxes full of trophies and listening

Swimming countercurrent

We first met Oddbjørn Jerijærvi at Halle and Egil's tugboat. The trio runs a cooperative, now in its sixth year of smooth operating. Oddbjørn has traveled around the world and lived many places, but always returned to his native Sør-Varangerer.

Everybody knows Kanthan, Kanthan knows everybody

Kanthan Poopalasingam came to Kirkenes from Sri Lanka in 1990, when he was 17. He works as a cleaner, porter, health and safety representative at the hospital and sometimes helps out in the nursing home in the weekends. He loves
